

Announcement Regarding Patricia R. Culbreth

The Diocese of Richmond Office of Catholic Schools and the Holy Cross Regional Catholic School Board are pleased to announce their new Head of School, Patricia R. Culbreth. Patricia will join the school in July 2010 to succeed William S. Coursey, III, who successfully directed the Holy Cross community as Interim-Head of School during the search process.

Culbreth comes to Holy Cross with over 25 years of academic experience in the areas of teaching, adult education, college counseling, academic policies, curriculum, and communication. Her most recent positions include Academic Dean and Director of College Counseling at Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg. Her qualifications include a Masters of Education in Curriculum from the University of Virginia and a Bachelor of Arts in English from James Madison University.

Describing herself as a Catholic woman grounded in “servant leadership,” Patti Culbreth has a passion for educating students in a student-centered Christian environment that challenges each student to reach his/her potential as a moral, productive, and ever-learning member of society.

Holy Cross Regional Catholic School, founded in 1879, is a fully accredited college preparatory school for students in pre-kindergarten through twelfth grade. Students hail from the City of Lynchburg as well as six neighboring counties and numerous foreign countries. Holy Cross Catholic School enrolls students of all faiths in an environment that promotes academic excellence, honor, tradition, service and Christian values. Increasing enrollment and recent completion of a successful capital campaign celebrating the school’s 130 year anniversary prepare Holy Cross for the next 130 years.
